

Miraculous to be part of the snow globe with the penguins on the icebergs and the icebergs with the cold shock and miraculous to be inside the dome with the curvature of the dome and the penguins' heads and the cold shock far from the city where this is not taking place and to be apart from the towers and a part of interiors with the curve of the moon made from clay.

Indigenous

6/1/11

BROADSIDED
www.broadsidedpress.org

Artist Christoph Keller is the author of many plays, essays anthologies and novels. His photographs have shown in New York, and he often collaborates with artists. Raised in Switzerland, he now lives in New York. Writer Nicolas Destino's poetry has appeared in the American Poetry Journal, The Pitkin Review, and Trident. He is co-author of the book: Of Kingdoms and Kangaroo. "Indigenous" first appeared in Required Journal.

